Tknow," he said, calmly. "I just wanted to be sure."

Mike and Diane heard him in stunned amazement. What had threatened to be a scene of violence and even of bloodshed had passed into one of peaceful quiet.

"James." Richard opened the door and spoke out the hall door.

"Sir?" James appeared, his undinching eyes betraying no vestige of the perturbation he felt, for he had heard every word.

"Set another place." Richard directed him, coolly. "Perhaps Mr. Bradley will have breakfast."

It was the closest James had ever come, in all his years of servitude, to a personal display of feelings in regard to his employer's action.

come, in all his years of servitude, to a personal display of feelings in regard to his employer's actions. But with admirable restraint he merely nodded and went towards the table.

Richard followed him. Mike, in silent wonder, waited expectantly, while Diane could only gaze at him Did Richard really mean this? Or what did he mean? Her head spun. Things had happened with such dizzying rapidity that she seemed to be in."

modded to Mike in slow conscious acknowledgment of the futility of his age against this youth. "That's a long time age, Mike."

Diane sobbed openly. "Richard—I—can't say—anything—"

"You aren't supposed to. Is she, Mike?"

Mike grinned, although there was an odd catch in his throat. "Nope."

He suddenly extended his hand. "Say—we didn't shake when I came in."

Things had happened with such dizzying rapidity that she seemed to be in a fog of bewilderment.

As James set another place for Mike at the table, Richard held his hands over Diane's shoulders. "Your jacket, my dear." In fine consideration he preferred not to look at her as he spoke. Everything else he could manage, but there was a pain in his heart that he knew his eyes reflected and it was this that he wanted to save her. The removed her facket and Diane tried to meet his glance, still unable to believe what his every action seemed to be telling her. She slipped off her beret, and dropped it, with her jacket, on a chair.

"Now-some breakfast," Richard said. He went to the table as Mike topped him. They all attacked the grapefruit. Richard said. He went to the table as Mike and Diane's eyes still followed him. He held Diane's chair, and she, after a second's hesitation, dropped into it. With a quick gesture her hands went up to her face, covering it.

"Mr. Bradley," Richard indicated the other chair and Mike mochanically seated himself. Before tak-

"While a blanket of ice covers the city this morning in the most severe storm since—" The practical matter-of-fact voice smote the ear incongruously in this room in the lives with bravery, delicacy and decency.

Another place, another climate, and Reno was just a fast-fading memory as Diane sat back in the car that was rapidly bringing her and Mike nearer to the ranch. Dreamily she noted again the great wide spaces and thought to herself that this time they meant home.

As the car drove in the gate, Pablo and Johnny excitedly ran out to meet them. After their loud and hearty greetings Mike shooed them away. He wanted to be alone with practical matter-of-fact voice smote the ear incongruously in this room that had so recently been witness to the tensity of their varied human emotions. Richard quickly changed the station.

The dignified crescendo of an organ filled the room. It swelled like a soft mantle of peace over all of them. Richard nodded his appreciation and sat down.

They were placed on three sides of the square table. Diane between them. Her face was still in her hands as she sat there—rigid. For one—or two—or even fifty seconds for consciousness could not grasp the fact that this thing had happened. The mean wing caught her eye. "Why, the house has grown up, Mike", she exclaimed, delightedly. "Sure." He lifted her out of the car. "Like us."

At the very door of the house Diane stopped him and murmured in his ear. "Do you remember what you said, Mike? No matter how you spell it—whether there's a sun—or a moon—or its raining—"

"It's love," he finished for her with a soft kiss. Then he carried his bride across the threshold and shut out the world.

How much is nine million dollars a year?

It is over one thousand dollars every hour. More than a dollar every four seconds.

It is twice the state appropriation for schools. It would pay for police protection for every city and town in Missouri.

It is equal to all the gasoline taxes collected by the State of Missouri in a year

It would build a concrete highway from St. Louis to Kansas City. It would build a courthouse for every county in the state. It would pay the fire protection costs of the whole State of Missouri.

> Nine million dollars is the amount of TAXES paid every year by the public utilities of Missoudi the companies which provide your electric, gas and water service. A nine-million dollar load taken off the shoulders of the citizens, because otherwise it would be levied upon the people directly.

Just why any Democrat should vote a split ticket this time, or any other time, is the question before the meeting. If you are a hide bound Republican and have not been aided or helped in any way by the Democratic administration, then you should vote the straight Republican ticket which calls for Hoover times again There is no man on the Republican ticket that is more competen to fill any of the offices than ar the Democratic nominees. Now During Senator Patterson's more than five years in the United States Senate no one has ever heard of him championing any measure that might help the farmer or the unemployed Though we do know that be was partisan enough to vote against every measure that Pres ident Roosevelt advocated in hi efforts to help those who needed help. Next in line for an important position comes Stephen Barton, Republican candidate for Circuit Judge. During the las campaign he was one of the mos bitter partisans that ever tool the stump and still he asks for Democratic support in order that he might be elected. He is nice gentleman and a good citi zen but that doesn't make hin fit timber for a high judicial position. Then comes George W. Kirl who seeks to be prosecuting At torney of Scott County. He i another partisan spellbinder ou of a job. He says he is well qualified for the job, and we expect he is, but why Democrats should vote for him over our Democratic nominee is beyond us, and we don't believe they will. Our nominee, W. P. Wilkerson, is a graduate of the University of Missouri, too, and is amply qualified to fill the job of Prosecuting Attorney of Scott County to which he is sure to be elected next Tuesday. Of course everybody knows "Cousin Ed" and love and respect him, but he is going to have a terrific battle to over-come "Daddy" at the polls. We until he was selected postmaster at Sikeston. Briscoe shifted uneasily and "Sugar" Kane, another member of the team and a southerner, drawled: "That's what I was gonna say"

How the Democratic Administration Has Helped You

The Democratic National Administration—

under the leadership of President Roosevelt has put the farmer back on his feet. The price of corn is more than four times as high as it was in 1932. The price of wheat has more than doubled. The price of hogs is nearly twice as high.

Through the corn loan act the farmers of Missouri have had at least $17,000,000 more to spend on groceries, clothes, automobiles, machinery and other necessary commodities.

This has helped YOU. Because of the increase in farm income, business in every city, town and village in Missouri has increased. More people now have jobs. Wages are higher. Working conditions are better and YOU have more security than you had two years ago.

Through other Democratic administration projects YOUR security has been increased. Your bank account is now safe. If not your home, the home of one of your neighbors has been saved to him because of the home loan act. Your farm or the farm of one of your neighbors has been saved for him through the farm credit administration. It is easy for you to think of a dozen other things the government has done for your benefit. These things have been done for YOU, and they have been done by a Democratic administration.

These are only a few of the many things which have been done for your benefit. These have all been done for YOU, and they have been done by a Democratic administration.

The Democratic Administration Has Helped YOU: Support It:

Democratic Candidate for United States Senator candidate for United States Senator, is in every sense a self-made man. Unable, because of financial reasons, to carry out his boyhood ambition to obtain a college education, he began by wrapping papers in a newspaper office, and was successively timekeeper for a railroad construction outfit, a bank clerk and a saiesman. During the world war he served with distinction as an artillery officer, being under fire in the Meuse-Argonne and at Verdun, rising to the rank of Captain.

Since the war, Judge Truman has come to be recognized as one of the leading experts in the United States in county government and financial management.
